Nebula Interstellar

“Naturally, when I think of cozy, I think of sitting in a pressurised tin can out in the cold void of space!”
- Zoe McFife

For me, the idea of living in a starship is deeply beautiful. It's your home that lets you see the wonders of the universe. The Nebula Interstellar Trifid is my concept of a small ship, designed to be really cozy. It incorporates luxury, practicality, and most importantly, lots of windows.

Draft

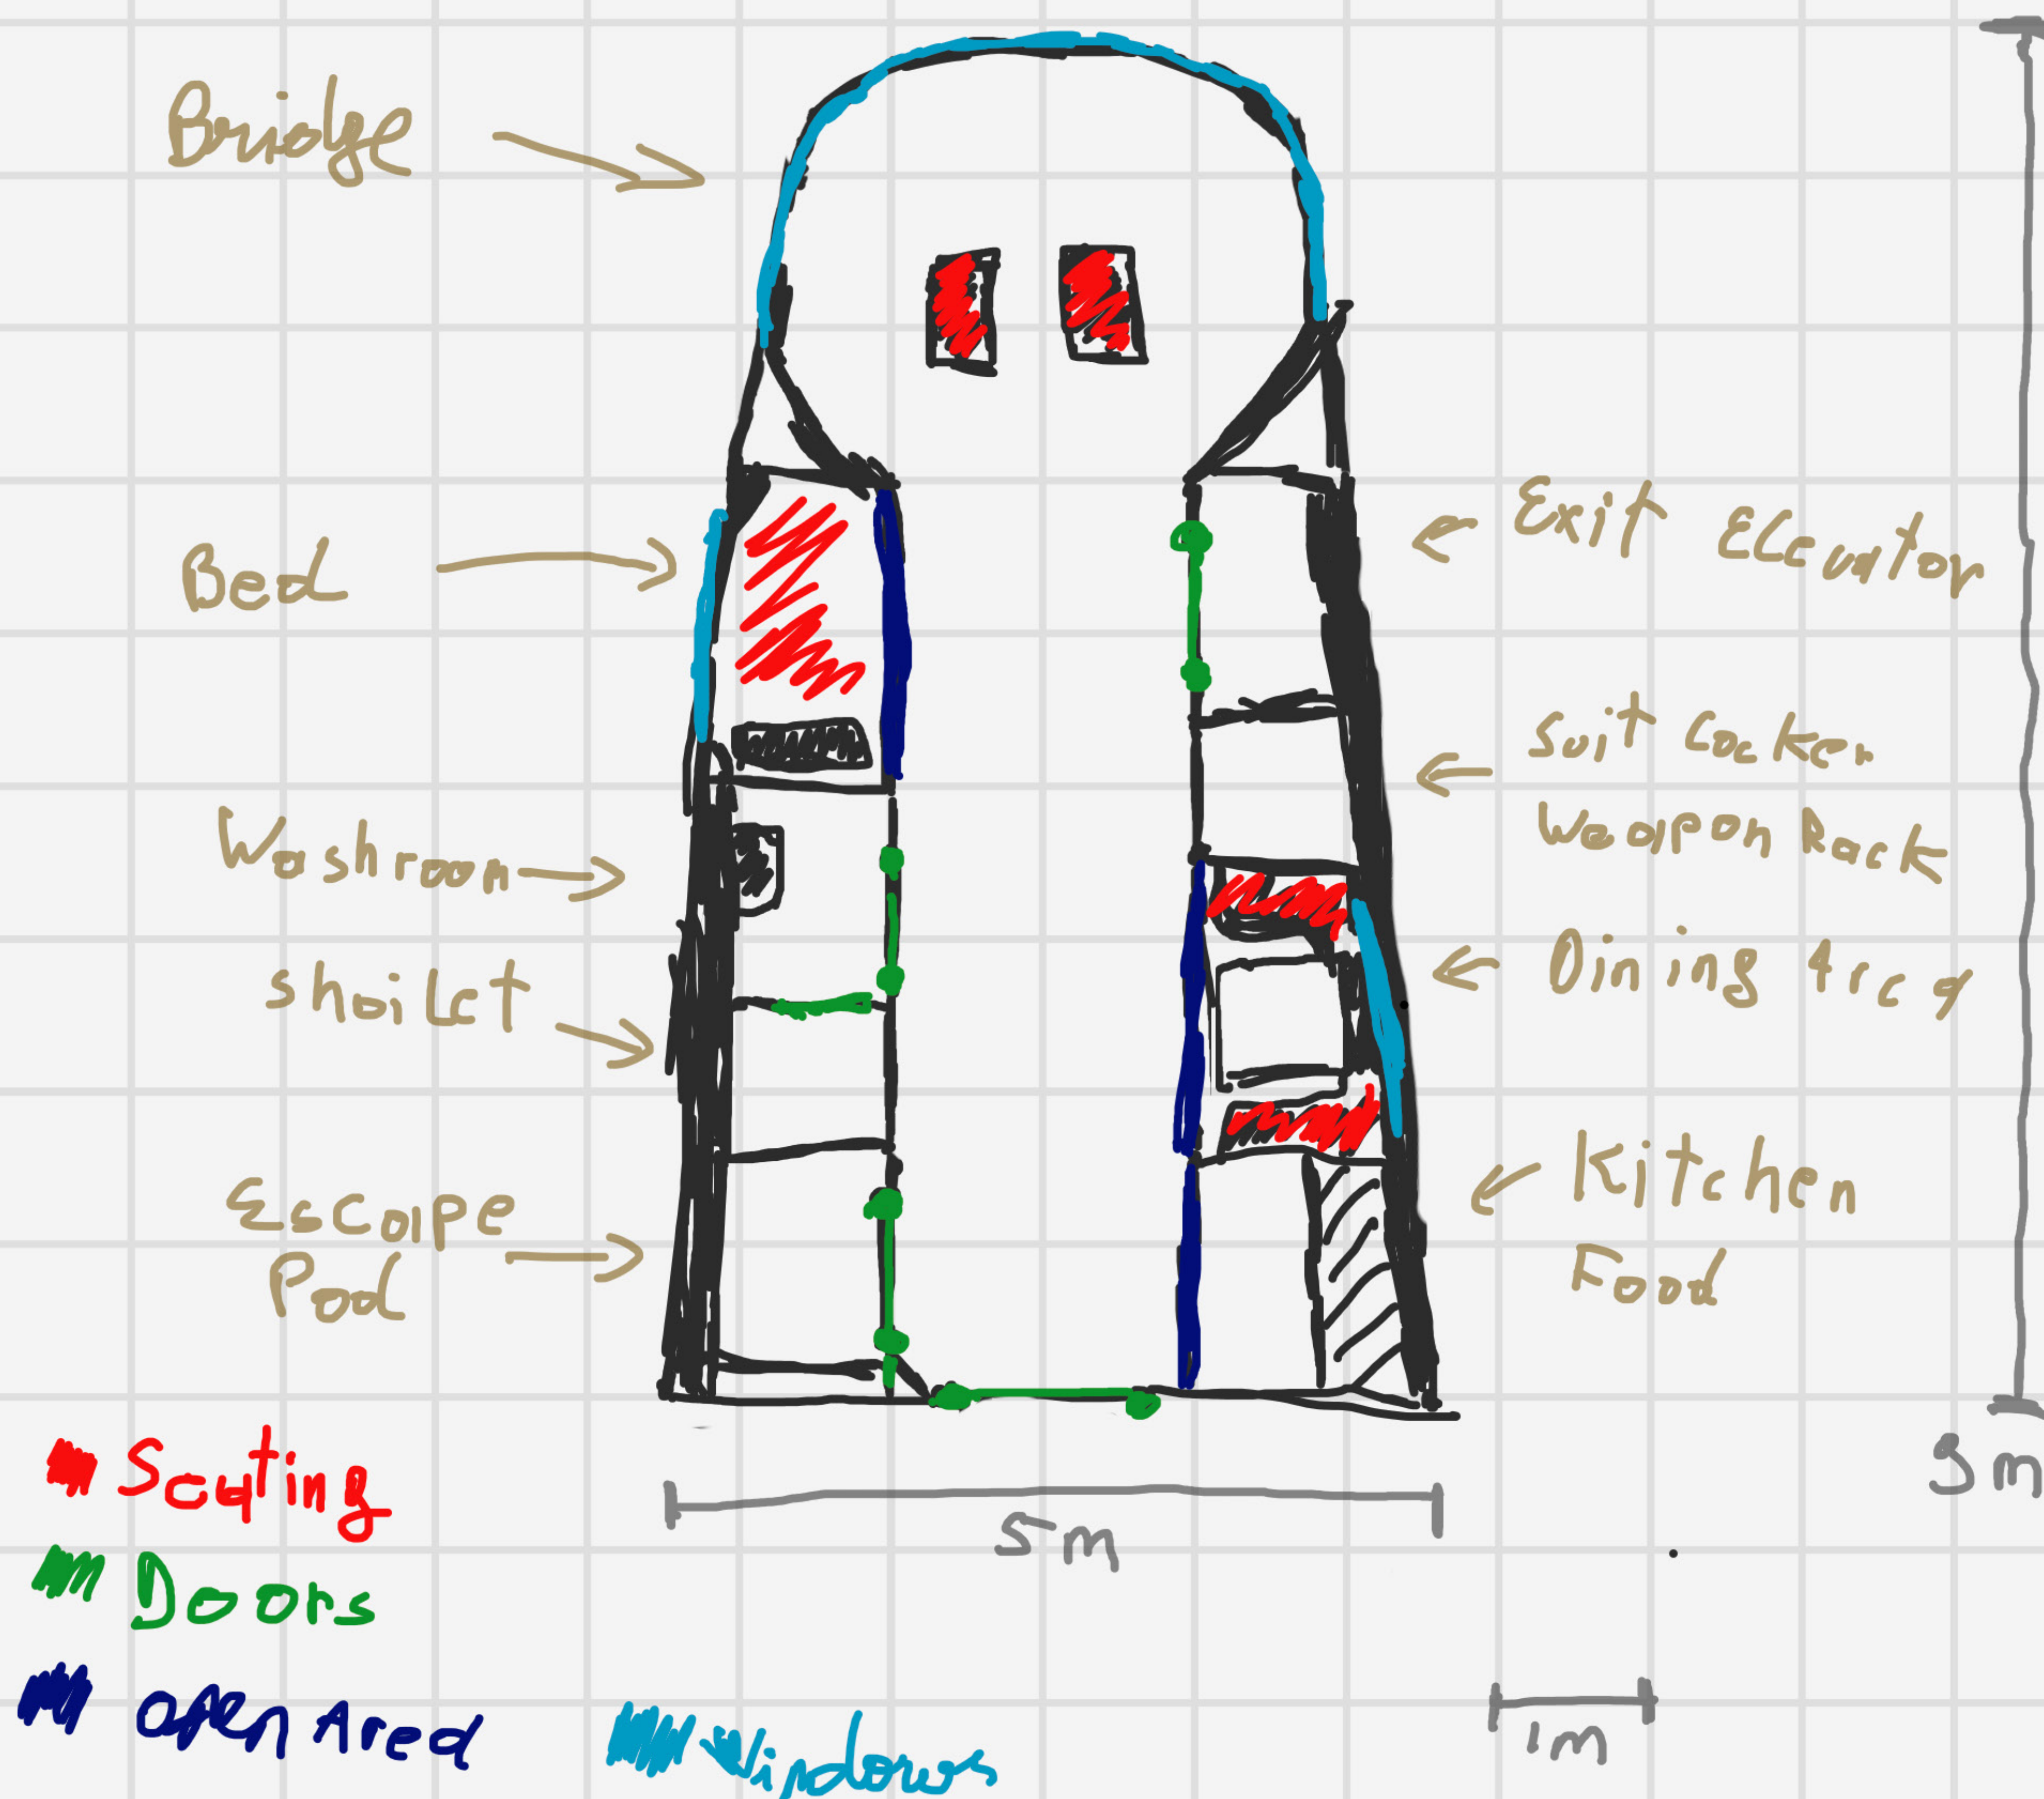

This is the first draft and concept of the Trifid. Here I outline the concept for the entire craft, with lore and other information.

It's really rough, but this is how I usually start, when designing a ship.

Nebula Interstellar Trifid

1st floor plan

This is a simple floor plan of the Trifids Habitation Section.

I added an escape pod and suit locker into this section, which meant i had to move the dining area down, so it now has a top window, instead of a side window, because otherwise the thruster would block the view.

Bed

The bed has a big panoramic window and some storage cabinets.

There are accent light strips on more important sections in the habitation section.

Dining

Bridge

The bridge is the central element of the Trifid. The big panoric canopy lets in a lot of natural light and lets you see the beauty of space fully.
